

ABSTRACT

The invention is an electric motor actuator for use in heater, ventilator and air-conditioning systems in automobiles. The present invention comprises an electric motor, an output shaft on which a worm is rotatably mounted, a spur gear train, an output gear connected to a driver, an optical sensor, and a printed circuit board. The present invention is designed to provide an actuator that is simple and affordable to manufacture.